

Quatro & Radiant Alliance

Quatro Four Retail™ has formed an alliance with Radiant Systems, allowing for some 2,500 service stations throughout Australia to integrate with Quatro via their existing Breeze system.

Radiant Systems, proprietor of Breeze Software, provides the retail and hospitality industry with technological solutions to better manage site operations.

Quatro's Head of Marketing, David Levine said: "Quatro's ability to improve supply chain management can translate to significant time savings and a reduction in costs for service station operators."

"Once integrated with Quatro, users can automate the entire order to sale process, enabling operators to spend less time focussing on order processes and more time building the business".

For service stations using Breeze software and wanting to integrate Quatro into their existing Back Office System, an upgrade will be required. The cost for this is minimal, involving a Quatro module being imported into the current Breeze system.
